Dear Ann O'Neal:

It was a pleasure talking to you today.

Enclosed are clips of my writing and my resume.

After I spoke to you I checked out the web-site and found a copy of the newsletter and read a couple of articles.

I was attracted to your ad for a couple of reasons. One was that it is a casual office and the other being that the way to contact you was by phone making things much more immediate, human and personal.

While most of my writing at the Welcomat, concerned music, I also wrote book reviews, previews, occasional film reviews and also occasional filler pieces on various area events. Usually I would contribute much more than my weekly column, usually writing a couple of previews and record reviews as well.

Another part of my job was talking on the phone (constantly) to various publicity agents, club owners and other people related to the business. I also have interviewed both for print and radio several major artists.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to your response

Sincerely,

Peter Brown
